Did you know that the Cumberland, Gloucester & Salem Municipal Courts handle over 250,000 cases each year?

Mediation is a way to end disputes without going to court and without using a judge to decide the case. The mediator encourages discussions between the parties to help them reach an agreement they can both accept. The mediator will not favor one party over the other. What makes mediation special is that a mediator does not decide the outcome of the case. The parties work to solve the problems between them.
